Anthroposophical Society in America

Consing in April at Plan voit

Consing Control New York

In Chent, Transforming Ourselves, Transforming Our World

> Annual Conference and Meeting New Orleans, LA October 5, 6, 7, 2018

Here & Now

Transforming Ourselves, Transforming Our World

Words of welcome from our conference planners (and hosts) greeted us...

Dear Friends,

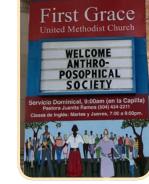

Thank you for joining us this October for the ASA's annual conference, Here and Now: Transforming Ourselves, Transforming Our World. Not only are we gathered in this beautiful and unique location, New Orleans, LA, we are gathered at our unique time and place in history, a time asking us all to transform the inner and outer worlds we inhabit.

What does transformation mean to each of us? Sometimes quiet and slow, sometimes fast and raucous, sometimes planned, sometimes a surprise, transformation comes in moments of need and destiny. However it enters your path, be assured it is an invitation for reflection and growth. May the flames of last year's conference in Phoenix, AZ ignite your inner path of transformation among friends old and new.

With gratitude,

The 2018 conference planning committee,

~ Charlie Burkam, Marianne Fieber-Dhara, Mason Howerton, Margaret Runyon, Laura Scappaticci

Report from the Conference by Sandra Stoner, Sacramento CA

Below, Sandra Stoner has kindly allowed us to share her report to the Faust Branch. In sidebars we include participants' thoughts from the post-conference survey. —Editor

When, as free human beings, we feel near to Michael, then we are on the way to convey the intellectual power into our whole being. We think, it is true, with our head, but the heart feels the light or darkness of the thinking. Will pours our inner being forth in light, when thoughts flow through the will with force of purpose. We grow ever more human, as we grow to be an expression of the world. We find ourselves, not by seeking ourselves, but by uniting ourselves to the world with will in love.

—Rudolf Steiner, 11/16/1924

Themes of Water & the Mississippi, Peace, Forgiveness, Transformation, Initiation, Music, Service and Love flowed through this event.

On October 21, 2007, two years after Hurricane Katrina, two United Methodist congregations less than a mile apart—the remnant of First UMC, an historically white congregation, and the remnant of Grace UMC, an historically black congregation, merged to form First Grace UMC, our host for this conference.

The Bayou St. John Songtrail was a pre-conference activity led by Marianne Fieber-Dhara. The morning before the conference opening, about sixty of us renewed our connections with the earth, the heavens and each other through singing, walking, and stories from the land. We met at the 800 year old McDonough Oak located

7:45 - 9:30 am

Bayou St. John Songtrail meet under the McDonough Oak, City Park

Marianne Fieber-Dhara's description:

A Songtrail is the weaving of songs, verses and stories from the land while walking along a chosen path. Attention is given to the qualities we see in the landscape, the Beings of nature and elemental worlds, and honoring the stories that are held in a place. It is a recognition of the sacredness of all places and an opportunity to connect with the Spirit of Place.

The Bayou St. John Songtrail was our chosen path for this conference.

We gathered in City Park under an ancient tree named the McDonough Oak. Beneath its graceful arching branches we opened the Songtrail with songs, honored the four directions, and shared some history before heading off to the bayou just a block away. Our mile and a half journey took us along Bayou St. John. We stopped at the historic portage which helped "land" this new place back in the 1700s—and heard about the beginning of New Orleans 300 years ago. The Bayou ends at the magnificent Jefferson Davis Parkway along which we continued walking until we reached Canal Street and First Grace Methodist Church. Stops along the way provided opportunities to sing, share, and hear more about this place we are in.

Editor's note: The Songtrails tradition has been alive in the Central Region since 2002.

In 2006 after Hurricane Katrina the Central Regional Council organized an Easter pilgrimage to New Orleans and the Gulf Coast. Thirty-five people from as far away as Alaska, California and Germany gathered near St. Louis, MO, and journeyed south along the Mississippi River to New Orleans...

The whole Central Region is closely aligned to the Mississippi River watershed.

10:00 - 12:00 Class Lesson and Conversation with Joan Sleigh

1:00 pm Opening

L-R: Marianne Fieber-Dhara, Laura Scappaticci, Margaret Runyon, Tess Parker, Charlie Burkam

Report from the Conference - Sandra Stoner, continued

Many of you have attended these conferences over the years and others of you have never been. It is an enlivening and inspiring activity which I hope many of you are able to experience in the years to come. There is much to be gained in the face to face connecting with others who share the desire to work together to further the work begun by Rudolf Steiner.

For me, sharing the music, the poetry, the group discussions, the pageant, the eurythmy, listening to the keynotes—all this contributed to my own soul growth and expanded my ability to hear what is being called forth in me and in the groups with which I connect. I can give my perspective of what lives in me from my presence at this event. I'm sure if you asked any other attendee, they would give you a much different picture. That is why we come together: to meet others, to understand, to learn, to grow in our understanding of who we are as individuals and who we are together. First Grace UMC welcomed us warmly. It was a beautiful example of what can be achieved by working together with other groups. Many of us joined in their Sunday Service. (Below, the church choir and musicians.)

1:30 - 2:30 Keynote Conversation with Orland Bishop

2:30 - 2:45 Dyad Sharing

Orland Bishop's Keynote

[Hear the entire talk: anthroposophy.org/webinars]
Orland's keynote was profound and powerful. He said New Orleans anchors the African-American Soul and named themes of Water, Peace, the Mississippi. This theme of the spirit of the African-American ran through many parts of this gathering:
New Orleans, the slave trade that was focused here; the two Methodist Churches coming together, our meeting place for this conference. The singing of "spirituals" at the gathering for branches, at the opening of the conference, and as part of the pageant. From Orland's book, The Seventh Shrine:

"They sang into the earth their ancestral songs and thereby cultivated, not just the land, but their future as well."

The Earth — On the song trail, we were performing a ritual, connecting with the land. From Orland's book:

"To be indigenous in this deeper sense is to reformulate one's body in order to draw from the Earth the creative will power to be oneself and to fulfill one's purpose and destiny in a particular place."

My reflection: I spent forty years in the heartland, Missouri and Kansas. I spent 23 years in my library work sharing what I had to offer to each one who came to me. Now I have come west. In reflecting on my purpose at this time in this place, I seem drawn to be helping people connect with each other, their own spiritual paths, and anthroposophy. To support learning and our ability to act in freedom to serve in the world with love.

Water — the convergence of many waters to form The Mighty Mississippi; Hurricane Katrina, and all that became evident to us from that experience. Soon after this conference, Hurricane "Michael" in Florida.

"The Ocean itself became a vessel through which a passage occurred for the soul to transform."

I was touched by his sharing of "The Negro Speaks of Rivers" by Langston Hughes and by the "coincidental" connection to a song ("Ain't Gonna Let Nobody Turn Me Around") we sang together at the Branch Gathering which included words by Langston:

"There are words like Freedom, sweet and wonderful to say. On my heart strings freedom sings, all day every day." "There are words like Liberty that almost make me cry. If you had known what I know, you would know why."

Other thoughts from Orland that stood out for me.

"The work of the beings of light is to bring us into darkness." The Christ mystery is an eternal covenant. As above, so below. Someday we will choose to do on this earth what always happens in heaven. Forgiveness must go to the soul level. We are not forgiving actions, but forgiving their karma. We are seeking the purification of the human will to return to his cosmic right. We cannot transform with will alone.

Participants' thoughts on this keynote: Brilliantly insightful, beautifully presented. W The main reason I decided to come; I found his presentations profoundly reverent. W Because he is known outside our circles, I am able to share his thoughts with friends outside of the Society. W Orland's talk and book have changed me, and I'm grateful! Such a deep and inspirational human being—an important voice for the times. W Wonderful to hear his experiences and his intuitive sense.

2:45 - 3:30 Here and Now with the General Council

4:00 - 5:15 Concurrent Sessions

Cain and Abel: Building a Bridge Between the Two Streams with Hazel Archer-Ginsberg Exploring Transformation
Through Our Own
Biography
with Janey Newton

Art Dispersal with Laura Summer

5:30 - 6:15 Central Region Interactive Panel (Sanctuary)

8:00 pm Memento Mori Ritual (Sanctuary)

Participants' thoughts: General Council update

Concise, interesting, laced with humor. I'm excited about the direction of the Society. I appreciate the Council and Leadership Team's efforts and intelligence and conscientiousness and integrity... Especially inspiring was John Bloom and entertaining was [retiring Treasurer] Jack Michael. Loved the good news too. I gained a deeper appreciation for the entire Council, and through the weekend could observe teamwork interaction.

I particularly appreciated John Bloom's calling us to be mindful of the precarious situation of the world outside of our Society, and to invoke the help of loved ones beyond the threshold, whose help is needed more than ever.

Hazel Archer-Ginsburg

Hazel Archer Ginsberg Workshop
So full of information and ideas! Good ending—with small group conversations.

Art Dispersal — A brilliant idea that puts the purpose of art creation foremost.

— I did not have room in my suitcase, next time will accommodate in some way. Wonderfully positive!

Memento Mori: Friday Night Ritual:

Very moving. Tess Parker presented the ritual and its symbols to allow an experience to emerge.

I will also especially carry my impressions of the Memento Mori ritual as a reminder of our place in the great cycle of life, death, and the spiritual world.

Scene from the biography workshop

Art dispersal paintings by Patricia Homan Lynch, above, and Laura Summer, right

8:00 - 8:45 Concurrent Exercises

Singing CHAPEL

Speech
CONFERENCE ROOM

Eurythmy FELLOWSHIP HALL

9:00 - 10:00 Keynote Discussion with Joan Sleigh (Sanctuary)

10:00 - 10:15 Dyad Sharing (Sanctuary)

Sandra Stoner's Report, continued Joan Sleigh's Keynote

[Hear the entire talk: www.anthroposophy.org/webinars]
A poem Joan shared with us:

I listen without knowing If what I hear is silence Or God

I listen but don't know if I'm hearing The echo of the empty expanses Or the attentive consciousness Which from the edge of the universe Sees and deciphers me

I know only that I walk as one
Who is watched loved and known
And that's why I place in the smallest act
Solemnity and risk

—Sophia de Mello Breyner Andresen (1919-2004)

This says much to me about my path, about our path:

Fear, Anger, Doubt — Joan encouraged us to explore these reactions in ourselves in order to move to forgiveness. With fear we withdraw or react (Willing). With anger, we need to understand the root and bring compassion (Feeling). With doubt, we are longing for trustworthy guidance, searching for our own truth (Thinking).

Pain needs to be faced, owned, and understood.

Seeing the other — My being moves out and meets the other. Listening to the other — I create a space in myself to allow the other to speak, silencing judgment and opinion. Understanding the other with empathy — I stand firmly in the consciousness soul. I know myself and expand and include the other without losing myself. We are co-creators in each of our initiation processes.

Joan Sleigh

The "I" identity is always in the process of growing and transforming. According to Rudolf Steiner, The identity finds itself in interaction with the world.

Crisis — is a process of separation in order to awaken in my Self.

Our dyad work [a pairing up to talk about the conference and ourselves] led by Janey Newton gave time to work with these concepts given by Joan.

Participants' thoughts on Joan Sleigh's keynote:

Filled with spirit and knowledge.

Janey Newton

(Loved the First Class free rendering as well.) W Outstandingly rich in content. W So grateful to get to meet her and hear her speak. So grateful she came. W The links to Orland's presentation were heartfelt, and received as such. W Very clear. New insights but understandable.

On dyad sharing:

The keynotes were both inspiring and I appreciated having the dyad and group sharing time to reflect on their messages. We Having a single partner deepened the experience of each session's presentation. We An incredible experience. Nice to get to know folks.

10:45 - 12:00

Concurrent Workshops

Transforming Community-Creating the Future: Young People Discovering Their Purpose and Place with Bart Eddy Initiation of the Heart: The Fifth Gospel with Patrick Kennedy Connecting Here and Now: A Conversation with the General Council

12:00 - 1:30

Lunch — Table Topic Discussions (Fellowship Hall)

1:30 - 2:30

Youth-Led Panel (Sanctuary)

2:45 - 4:00

Participant Research & Initiative Sharing Concurrent Sessions (Choose on site)

Awakening Connections: Biography Work in School Communities, with Kathleen Bowen Who is a Reconciler, and How Do We Use Our Privilege for Good? with Kahlida Lloyd The Wisdom Working Directory: Finding New Metaphors for Collaboration, with Jordan Walker Liane Collot's Approach to Watercolor Painting, with Lois Schroff

 $Mys Tech: Exploring\ Moral\ Technology\ &\ Anthroposophical\ Futurism,\ with\ Anne\ Nicholson,$

Frank Dauenhauer & Andrew Linnell

The Threefold Social Organization of CFAE, with Frank Dauenhauer

School District-Supported, Grassroots Initiative: Waldorf Education in Colorado, with Thesa Callinicos

Steiner Spoken Word Arts in Therapy, Education, and Culture, with Jeremiah Turner

Sandra Stoner: Connecting with the General Council

A few notes from group discussion: Something new has emerged in the leadership. The Council is looking at the entire system created by Rudolf Steiner. There is an interplay between freedom and individuality. Spirit is active through individuals. Our individual point of view is what unites us.

Participants' thoughts: Bart Eddy Workshop

I hope for more of this work, more like it in the world!

Participant Research & Initiative Sharing Sessions

Finding out how many great initiatives are out there—talking with people walking the walk!

These were more informational, appropriately so; space to breathe out.

Patrick Kennedy Workshop

Memorably rich in content and lively in presentation. We Patrick's skill as a teacher is phenomenal. He made the point of how empathetic listening can help an individual, become a subjective experience. We I couldn't believe that the presentations could become any more profound, but this one took it to another level. I was floored. Still am.

Youth-Led Panel

It was over all lovely. ₩ This was a soulful experience.

Table talk — participant sharing.

Youth-led panel

4:30 - 6:15

Concurrent Sessions (Choose on site)

The Seventh Shrine with Orland Bishop

Waldorf Education in Crisis Zones: Art, Hope and Healing in the West Bank with Thea Lavin Art Dispersal with Laura Summer

Strengthening Foundations of Inner Work and Meditation with Lisa Romero

8:00 - 9:30

Confluence of Karma: A Pageant Of Dedicated Service (Sanctuary)

Sandra Stoner, continued

The 7th Shrine by Orland Bishop

(The General Council is studying this book together.) These are notes from the breakout group with Orland.

- → Gnosis "Remember the agreement you came here for."
- His work There is enough work in one day. Ask, "What's going to happen today?" Don't plan tomorrow.
- * This is a "light practice": When the sun is here, what do you do? "Give us this day our daily bread."
- * Trying to get someone to think like me is violation of their human rights.
- → The earth is hosting our futures.
- Anonymous sources are working to bring good.
- Not will against the world. Will to bring light.
- Take into the night what we know from the day.

Participants' thoughts: Lisa Romero Workshop

I especially will carry what I heard from Lisa Romero about how to develop my capacities of thinking, feeling, and willing... Usa brings a connection to the spiritual world through meditation that is helpful. Having more time with her would be good.

Thea Lavin from House of Hope

Lisa Romero (right) in conversation in the exhibit area.

Sandra Stoner, continued

Confluence of Karma: A Pageant of Devoted Service

A highlight of the conference was the presentation of a pageant written by Marianne Fieber-Dhara for the 2018 AGM. The pageant follows the life of Helga Ingeborg Friedländer Elsas, her relationship with Dr. Ita Wegman, and events of the time. The Central Region presented the pageant and invited several of us to join in. I enjoyed participating with a small eurythmy group.

Participants' thoughts:

A highlight!! Really went well with New Orleans & history. Loved the eurythmy. Very moving when Ita Wegman died. Unbelievable considering all rehearsals were at conference. I loved participating in the pageant. It was so much fun to participate in and to watch! Great to collaborate. OMG! The Pageant's theme fit into the thoughts expressed throughout the conference. I sat in wonder at the artistic telling of an important turning moment of time, and in wonder of the individuals involved, the link living among us being Margaret Runyon. This performance brought our Past and Present together into mutually carried consciousness. All of us came together in an Eternal Moment with promise of Future engagement. A Promise. Dare I say prophecy? Wonderfully prepared! Excellent audience participation! Wonderfully gave a sense for life as a mystery drama, and how Steiner's dramas helped create a community.

Sunday, October 7, 2018

8:00 - 8:30 Group Speech

8:30 - 8:45 Dyad Sharing

8:45 - 10:00 Now and Next — Art, Reflection, Closing Plenum, Singing

Sunday, October 7, 2018

11:00 - 12:30

Choose Your Activity:

First Grace Church Service with Orland Bishop and Pastor Shawn Anglim

Arts and Crafts in the Modern World with Caroline Finck of

The Guild at Raphael Village, A Camphill Initiative

Post Sessions

(Included in Conference Fee)

1:00 - 1:30 Tour of St. Rose Building, the future home of The Waldorf School of New Orleans

(2539 Columbus St. New Orleans, LA 70119)

Choose Your Activity:

2:00 - 4:00 Help and Hindrances in Building Inner Development with Lisa Romero (Chapel)

"That Good May Become" Working with the Foundation Stone with John Bloom

(Conference Room)

Participants' thoughts on the conference overall and highlights

It really was a touching of hearts. So appreciated the keynote speakers.

Superbly rich in content, surprisingly adventurous, sweetly organized!

The church venue was fabulous. So glad I came.

"Transformative."

Being in New Orleans, in that church, with all attendees, hearing Orland Bishop,—a most important event for our future work. It has planted a seed of new hope in my heart.

Connecting with other folks and gathering ideas for my own spiritual journey, plus ideas for sharing with my branch back home.

Dipping into the reality of what Orland Bishop brings. And hearing it echoed so congruently (but each in their own way) with the other presenters. Having "the Society" embrace, applaud, and steady itself for that work ahead...

A single event? The Pageant because it brought everything together in a living spiritual experience of art, drawn forth from all of us through willing thought and deeds. The fact that amateurs could perform in various artistic ways, bringing their hearts to expression and still be witness to the whole... And the fact that we actually lived at the time of some part of the story served to expand ourselves to Spirit...

Inspiring talks by Orland and Joan and Patrick and how beautifully they connected.

Listening to Joan and Orland, attending the First Grace service, watching Laura hold the whole conference together! Thank you, Laura!

The Guild at Raphael Village - arts & crafts

Participants' thoughts on the conference overall and highlights

Lisa's workshop. The pageant. The Church, authenticity, meeting new members.

Weaving all the large variety of different activities and the opportunity to converse with people.

The keynotes and intermittent conversations with friends and colleagues.

The youth conference was really special. So many insights from each speaker. I especially will carry what I heard from Lisa Romero about developing my capacities of thinking, feeling, and willing, the insights about forgiveness and empathy from Orland Bishop, and Patrick Kennedy's sharing about what it is to be "Christ-like."

Drawing-with-rice workshop weekend. There was grace everywhere, implanting hope for the future in my heart. Thanks for all of your heartfelt work.

Glad it was live streamed. Also there was so much that it was difficult to digest what was said before taking in more from the conference.

I returned with a renewed sense of myself as a human being and my direction and priorities in life. I am so grateful for the careful intentionality that went into planning every piece of this experience. Thank you!

Inspirational. Connections. Seeing, hearing about anthroposophy initiatives. Hopeful.

It's wonderful to reconnect with people, after many years and to meet the new younger members stepping into carry new impulses.

Being with folks from all over the nation enhances our work back in our own communities.

I describe my experience to several friends, all were inspired, and actually asked for more details. The fact is that I have felt a shift in thinking within the Society from attending this meeting. The emphasis here was that individuals need to do the inner work in order to be engaged truly in world events. Not "talking about" anthroposophy, "doing" anthroposophy in small inner ways, supporting ourselves mutually. The world is evolving apace, and we collectively need to be engaged at the appropriate rate of the problem's evolution.

I am grateful to have met so many new people and heard their stories. The setting of First Grace was meaningful and I'm glad we had the option to attend the Sunday morning service.

Coming to the Conference was a personal challenge—a personal coming forth of intention, arriving to a strange city alone, not being thoroughly organized to navigate the challenges. At

A conversation with children in the church service

Participants' thoughts on the conference overall and highlights

Kari Olson provided the beautiful conference artwork; the "art dispersal" exhibit is in the background.

The entire conference experience opens windows to a range of anthroposophical initiatives and people who are making this work.

The gathering was accessible for someone new to the work, deeply affirming and encouraging to those already up to their eyeballs...

Inspiration and fellowship; the renewed, strengthened connection to the movement; for the touch stone with the work of a local group...

It is a wonderful experience for anyone. As an educator, as a youth finding your vocation, and nearly any other time and place in life.

I was amazed to see over sixty people joining this musical adventure, the Songtrail, that started in an obscure location very soon after sunrise!

I'm 82 years young, and thought that I could walk the entire length... When energy flagged, there would be a planned stop for a story, marvelous tree(s), wonders of varied sorts, and then I felt revived. I finished the entire walk, and the rest of the day went well. The Songtrail was a memorable highlight.

The Sunday morning artistic activity was very satisfying. ♥ Speech was a rich experience. ♥ The poetry composing as a group was a lovely experience. — Wonderful creating the poems together, inspiring to do and to hear others.

Impressions of Anthroposophy in New Orleans, October 2018

Welcome to where the air moves Like molasses. The black and fluid earth Released from far away Has come here for Transformation and Renewal. And even the trees hold Resurrection in their ample arms

First, Grace...
Full of Reconciliation and Reverence
Opens to Facilitate our diversity
Of waking and walking and working
With Anthroposophy

Here and Now We can unfold anew Light, Love, and Life

In our deepening agreement
The covenant comes to life
In heartfelt conversations
Weaving the Word into the future of Our co-creation

Micha-elic mood
Moves in lemniscates.
Memento Mori and Make More
Love visible through inner and outer Work
A pageant of karmic unfolding
Forgiveness and a new Faith in Freedom.
Sing

— Timothy Kennedy, 10/18 reprinted from the Portland Branch newsletter

EVERY LIFE STORY IS RICH WITH INTENTION AND MEANING

Our Biography & Social Art Certificate Progran is a unique, three-year, low-residency training beginning summer of 2019. We meet three times per year: two weeks each summer; one week each fall & spring in Chestnut Ridge, NY.

APPLY NOW!

Our graduates deepen their capacity for perception, empathy, imagination, spiritual-insight, communication, plus continue on to transform areas of health care, elder care, counseling, art therapy, education, leadership, community development & social renewal.

Free Columbia

Practical investigations of art in relation to the spiritual aspects of the human being and the world.

Low Residency Painting Course
Puppetry Internships
Puppet performances
Art Dispersals
Summer Courses
Children's Classes
Music
Residencies
Practical Arts
Research in Regional Currency

All supported by freely given donations.

www.freecolumbia.org

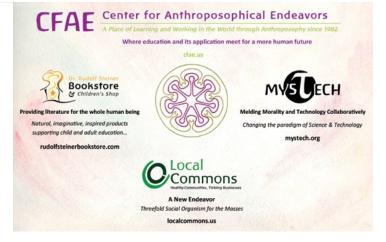

EduCareDo offers a self-directed, distance-learning course based on the principle ideas of Rudolf Steiner

Since 2002, over 3,000 students from 30 countries have participated in EduCareDo's Foundation Course. The lessons are designed to awaken an individualized relationship to anthroposophy through readings, experiments, creative activities, and exercises towards inner development. EduCareDo continues to expand its community partnerships including with many Waldorf Schools, the Biodynamic Association's Farmer Foundation Year, and Anthroposophical Prison Outreach.

EduCareDo Ltd is a non-profit international research and learning center offering accessible, experiential and affordable courses in anthroposophy to communities and individuals worldwide

Confluence of Karma: A Pageant of Devoted Service

Written by Marianne Fieber-Dhara

Participant Songs and Verses

SONG: Every Time I Feel the Spirit

VERSE: Imbue thyself with the power of imagination Have courage for the truth Sharpen thy feeling for the

Responsibility of Soul

VERSE: Hearts will read karma

When hearts learn
To read the word
Which shapes things
In human lives
When hearts learn
To utter the word
Which shapes things
In the human world.

SONG: Lo Yisa Goy

CALL AND RESPONSE:

Wisdom Corps: "Who is wise?

AUDIENCE: One who learns from every man...

Wisdom Corps: Who is strong?

AUDIENCE: One who overpowers his inclinations...

Wisdom Corps: Who is rich?

AUDIENCE: One who is satisfied with his lot...

Wisdom Corps: Who is honorable?

AUDIENCE: One who honors his fellows." – Wisdom Corps: Ben Zoma, Ethics of the Fathers, 4:1

SONG: This Train is Bound For Glory

VERSE: Spirit Victorious

Flame through the impotence

Of Irresolute Souls Burn out egotism Ignite compassion That selflessness

The Life Stream of Humankind

Wells up as the source

Of Spirit rebirth

SONG: This Little Light of Mine

Anthroposophical Society in America

1923 Geddes Avenue | Ann Arbor, MI 48104 | anthroposophy.org

Atlanta mula retine date.

Atlanta mula retine date.