

BIODYNAMIC CALENDAR WORKSHOP

Introduction to working with a Biodynamic Calendar

With Sherry Wildfeuer, editor of Stella Natura Biodynamic Planting Calendar

Curious to find out what biodynamic planting calendars are all about? In this workshop, Sherry Wildfeuer offers an introduction to biodynamics and basic astronomy, shares the history and context of biodynamic planting calendars, and explains how to use the charts in the Stella Natura calendar to help you know when to sow your seeds to enhance the quality of your crops. Bring your 2019 Stella Natura calendar or purchase one at the door. No prior knowledge of the subject is required.

Sherry Wildfeuer is an adult educator and an active member of the Anthroposophical Society and its Agriculture Section. She is the editor of the Stella Natura biodynamic planting calendar and a long-term co-worker in Camphill Village Kimberton Hills, an intentional community that specially includes adults with developmental disabilities, located in Kimberton, Pennsylvania.
